Ethics & Human Rights

After learning about various ethical principles in class, we should continue the conversation by applying these principles to organizations that show off humans' best intentions: the fight for equal human rights. In this project, you will evaluate the actions of a particular organization/movement through the lens of one of the principles we covered in class. You may choose your groups, but your ethical principle and movement will be chosen at random.

Research:
- Minimum 5 sources
- All primary, although you are welcome and encouraged to read other sources to get to those you will be using

Turn in:
- Works Cited page - MLA format
- Notes/planning - any format
- Video - shared in Google Drive or via web link (do not email)
    - 5-10 minutes
    - Create a news-style report that delves into the question of a movement's ethicality
    - Synthesize sources rather than organizing segments by source

Quality product:
- Ideas are well-developed
- Research is woven in thoughtfully and discussed in-depth
- Video is creative
- Demonstrates hard work, editing, and thoughtfulness
- Is not a summary of the movement and the ethical principles but rather uses the principles to examine actions & outcomes

Due _____